INDEX.

Here are arranged the titles and sub-titles of the digest, and such minor headings as seem useful. Main titles are set in black letter and are followed by the analyses that accompany them in the text, the volume and page where the title or division thereof is found being given. Other references are to titles and sections. Where reference is made in the index to a heading thereof that is not a title in the text, such heading is printed in italics. The minor heads and the entries thereunder are quite numerous, but in many cases the need of them has been anticipated by the free use throughout the text of repetitions and cross-references.
